APPRAISAL TOOL

on the Inclusion of Forcibly Displaced and Stateless Persons in National Frameworks for the Achievement of the SDGs

Acknowledgements

The Appraisal Tool on the Inclusion of Forcibly Displaced and Stateless Persons in National Frameworks for the Achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals is a result of the collaboration between the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). The tool was developed by Yulian Tsolov with overall guidance provided by Johannes Tarvainen, Babatunde Abidoye and David Khoudour from UNDP and Kaori Kawarabayashi, Elisa Benassi, Bryan Hunter, Jason Pronyk and Ran Xu from UNHCR. Sincere appreciation is expressed to Susannah Friedman, Anna Gesine Kneifel and Anna De La Varga Fito from UNHCR for providing valuable comments and supporting the peer-review process. Andrea Pellandra from the Global Data Service of UNHCR provided valuable contributions to the finalization of the Data and Monitoring and the Leave No One Behind pillars.

The SDG appraisal tool was designed and developed based on consultative inputs and peer review from nine UNDP and UNHCR country offices. Nine joint country consultations, which played a central role in informing the content and structure of the tool, were carried out in Chad, Colombia, Ethiopia, North Macedonia, Pakistan, Rwanda, Serbia, Türkiye and Zambia. Contributors included Stephen Kinloch Pichat, Elie Yanyara Djimadoumadji, Serge Ndjekouneyom, Chrysantus Ayangafac (UNDP Chad); Elena Ferrari, Roberta Montevecchi (UNHCR Chad); Paloma Blanch (UNDP Colombia); Michael Lerner (UNHCR Colombia); Titus Kuuyuor, Nebyu Mehary (UNDP Ethiopia); Katarina Herneryd-Yahya, Kylie Pearce (UNHCR Ethiopia); Suzana Ahmeti, Ardita Zekiri, Biljana Cvetanovska Gugoska (UNDP North Macedonia); Monica Sandri, Ana Jovanovska, Vanja Ashkapova, Cristina Bunea, Tihomir Nikolovski (UNHCR North Macedonia); Umer Malik, Mustafa Mahmood, Nadeem Ahmed (UNDP Pakistan); Arefu Araki (UNHCR Pakistan); Nicolas Schmids (UNDP Rwanda); Wendy Rappeport, Arifur Rahman, Angelot Gashumba, Amare Gebre Egziabher (UNHCR Rwanda); Jelena Maric Lukovic, Jelena Manic, Aleksandra Urosev, Zarko Petrovic (UNDP Serbia); Stefanie Krause, Ivana Jelic, Jelena Milonjic, Edlira Baka-Peco (UNHCR Serbia); Bastien Revel (UNDP Türkiye); David Budgen, Sebastiaan der Kinderen, Elif Eser Mooty (UNHCR Türkiye); Jan Vandenbroek, Ceri Davies, Kenichi Sasamori (UNDP Zambia); Awo Dede Cromwell, Maybin Nsupila, Felix Mwenge, George Omondi Oduo (UNHCR Zambia).

Introduction

With the adoption of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its 17 universal and interrelated Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), the international community set an ambitious framework for human development by tackling a wide range of issues such as poverty eradication, combating inequalities, ensuring access to health, education, clean water and sanitation, preventing and recovering from natural disasters, adapting to climate change and so forth. Fundamental for the effective and inclusive SDG implementation is the overarching commitment to “leave no one behind” and significantly improve the well-being and living conditions of the poorest, most vulnerable and marginalized groups in societies, including those at risk of violence and discrimination. The 2030 Agenda explicitly recognizes the vulnerability of refugees, internally displaced persons (IDPs), and more broadly, the impact of migration on development.

Forced displacement disproportionately affects individuals who live in fragile contexts as a large percentage of the world’s poorest people live in countries affected by fragility, conflict and violence, and disasters.¹

While stateless persons are not explicitly mentioned in the 2030 Agenda, the fact that the vast majority of stateless people face multiple challenges in terms of access to economic opportunities, political participation and social inclusion, the pledge to “leave no one behind” clearly applies to those who suffer from exclusion as a result of not being nationals of any country.² The responsibility for achieving the SDGs rests with Member States. It includes determining national and subnational development priorities, collecting and disaggregating data, and identifying those left furthest behind. In situations of forced displacement, the countries of origin, transit and destination are faced with a vast array of challenges and resource constraints. This calls for broad-based multi-stakeholder partnerships, as recognized in the Global Compact on Refugees (GCR) and further exemplified through various country experiences in implementing national comprehensive refugee responses, often in synergies with the United Nations Sustainable Development Cooperation Frameworks (UNSDCFs).

¹ According to the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), States of Fragility Report (2020), 1.8 billion people lived in fragile contexts in 2020, which is projected to further grow and reach 2.2 billion by 2030. Available at: <https://www.oecd.org/dac/states-of-fragility-fa5a6770-en.htm>

² UNHCR, Briefing Note: The Sustainable Development Goals and Addressing Statelessness (2017). Available at: <https://www.refworld.org/docid/58b6e3364.html>

The Voluntary National Reviews (VNRs) presented at the High-level Political Forum on Sustainable Development (HLPF) in 2020 illustrate the varying degrees to which countries include and report on forcibly displaced and stateless persons.

Out of the 47 countries that prepared VNR reports, 19 countries did refer briefly to refugees, while 14 referenced IDPs and 5 stateless persons (UNHCR; 2020). The failure to systematically include these populations of concern can be associated with the lack of disaggregated data for the indicators relevant to forcibly displaced and stateless persons, internal political implications or a lack of empirical evidence and limited awareness of the development potential these groups can have for more informed and inclusive national and subnational planning processes. Against this background, UNDP and UNHCR have developed this joint *Appraisal Tool on the Inclusion of Forcibly Displaced and Stateless Persons in National Frameworks for the Achievement of the SDGs*³ to offer an integrated framework to assess the inclusion of forced displaced and stateless persons in the achievement of the SDGs. The tool is a multilayered, context-adaptable and practice-driven, question-based assessment framework for targeted analyses and responses. The tool is designed to support decision makers including government officials, local authorities and UN agencies as well as development donors and partners, civil society, academia and other stakeholders working with forcibly displaced and stateless persons, to identify systemic barriers for the inclusion of these populations in national systems and development processes, prioritize action pathways to address the identified challenges and enable inclusion, mobilize (leverage) resources required to implement concrete follow-up actions and promote partnerships for inclusive and sustainable development.

This document introduces the key features of the tool and contains step-by-step instructions to guide decision makers and stakeholders in its application, with detailed information on how to conduct the thematic assessments, collect consultative inputs, verify results and formulate follow-up actions. The annexes include thematic summary sheets in line with the 9-pillar structure of the tool, relevant resources and tools, and adaptable questionnaires with scoring criteria and reporting templates.

Depending on the national arrangements and specific local circumstances, governmental agencies and local authorities as well as UNDP, UNHCR or other UN agencies can play a key coordinating role to support the application of the tool. The initiation and application approach, including the particular roles and responsibilities of the engaged actors, however, can be adapted to the specific contexts, needs and available resources. UNDP and UNHCR colleagues at country and regional levels can help determine the scope and complexity of the tool's applicability from a focused approach, such as prioritizing a single or limited number of pillars over a more comprehensive scale of multiple thematic pillars and questions.

³ Hereafter, SDG tool for forced displacement and statelessness contexts, or SDG appraisal tool.

Objectives, structure, expected outcomes and users of the tool

The SDG appraisal tool is intended to respond to an increasing demand from UNHCR and UNDP country offices as well as from a wide range of government authorities, national stakeholders and partners for identifying the critical gaps, and mapping the potential opportunities for the inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in the implementation of the SDGs.

The SDG appraisal tool can be used to analyse, monitor and facilitate partner engagement and follow-up through thematic assessments, consisting of structured questions subject to consultative inputs. The thematic assessments are adaptable, and allow for either more holistic (in-depth) or rapid (light) appraisals, depending on and adapted to the country's context, available resources and priorities.

The tool aims to:

- 1) Facilitate joint and consultative analysis on the inclusion of forcibly displaced, stateless persons and host communities in national efforts and actions aimed to achieve the SDGs and ensure an evidence-driven and inclusive sustainable development planning at national or local levels.
- 2) Identify short- and medium-term actions for national/local governments, UN Country Teams (UNCT) and other stakeholders to reach the furthest behind first and refine joint responses to support governments and local authorities in addressing the needs of forcibly displaced, stateless and local populations more effectively.
- 3) Articulate country-specific linkages and opportunities for alignment between the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Global Compact on Refugees (e.g. the Global Refugee Forum pledges and contributions), as well as between the SDGs and national frameworks relevant to refugees, internally displaced or stateless persons.
- 4) Promote multi-stakeholder partnerships and strengthen resource mobilization for joint interventions informed by outcomes of the assessment.

The tool is structured around nine thematic pillars:

1. SDG institutional mechanisms and stakeholder engagement	2. National development frameworks and sectoral coherence	3. Data and monitoring
4. National SDG reporting and Voluntary National Reviews	5. Leave no one behind	6. SDG localization
7. Contextual alignment: Global Compact on Refugees & the SDGs	8. Synergies with the UN Cooperation Framework (for UNCT use)	9. UNDP-UNHCR country collaboration on the SDGs (bilateral)

Each thematic pillar, together with the intended outcomes, is outlined in detail in the introductory section of the questionnaire templates (Annex 1).

The tool represents a set of key questions that can be applied holistically (all nine pillars or multiple questions across pillars) or selectively (one or several pillars) depending on the country's specific priorities and needs, to provide quick, exploratory, updated or generate new information on the status of forcibly displaced and stateless persons vis-à-vis the level of inclusion in national SDG policy, monitoring and reporting frameworks. This means that the methodological choice in some contexts might be more comprehensive, capturing interconnected challenges, while in others, the choice might be for more of a focused (rapid) and less costly approach, but generating results that are more indicative in nature.

The tool seeks to fill information gaps at a country level by introducing a systematic diagnostic approach to identify a problem and its implications for the inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in national actions and mechanisms aimed at achieving the SDGs. In addition, the tool provides a framework for periodic monitoring to keep track on the success or failure of the assessment results, adjustments and follow-up actions. Results of the assessment can feed into theories of change for multi-year projects or plans, inform the preparation of the Common Country Analysis (CCA), situational analysis or other assessments, facilitate joint mobilization of resources, development of regional strategies and outreach campaigns, and foster multi-stakeholder collaborations to deliver the desired solutions and positively impact the achievement of the SDGs across geographies, people and groups.

The intended outcomes of the assessment should support national and local authorities, UN agencies (e.g. UNDP and UNHCR) or other partners to leverage resources and define tangible steps to practically implement the key findings and recommendations of the assessment, through policy uptakes, programmatic interventions or other avenues. Possible outcomes could include:

- Incentivize the development, review or enactment of policies, laws and reforms of relevance to forcibly displaced and stateless people to confront systemic inequalities and exclusion.
- Improve the collection, processing and sharing of data, and foster discussion on the technical and capacity needs to support the production of disaggregated statistics for subpopulations (e.g. by forced displacement status across priority SDG indicators) and within groups of interests (by sex, age, etc.).

- Promote stakeholder engagement in existing 2030 Agenda institutional arrangements and coordination mechanisms to ensure inclusive, participatory and representative decision-making processes.
- Identify concrete, targeted options for joint programming either at national or regional levels, or more in-depth assessments.
- Support the development of accountable local governance systems to accurately reflect local needs and priorities, particularly of the most vulnerable groups, and align local plans with the SDGs.
- Inform planning and prioritization of actions (policy, programmatic, advocacy, etc.) among UNCT or relevant humanitarian/development multi-stakeholder working groups and committees

Results of the assessment can be used to highlight strengths, weaknesses and response options in relation to national SDG policy planning, coordination and implementation frameworks in reaching the furthest behind first, and enhance the cross-sectoral interactions and harmonization of service delivery between national and local governments. Outcomes of the tool can be particularly beneficial in identifying opportunities and discrepancies around approaches and programmes seeking to reinforce the humanitarian-development-peace (HDP) nexus, and scale up synergies in pursuing the GCR objectives and the SDGs in a joint manner, including on the follow-up of the commitments made at the Global Refugee Forum (GRF).

In terms of value creation, the process of applying the tool can further:

- Support the review of relevant government measures designed to enable inclusion of these populations of concern in national systems.
- Trigger changes in service delivery or access to rights, at both national and local levels.
- Draw attention of decision makers and partners to address specific bottlenecks that impede progress towards the SDGs for these populations of concern and local host communities.
- Maintain open and participatory engagement in the preparation of (sub) national plans and priority actions to support the SDG implementation in contexts of forced displacement.

- Initiate (enhance) structured dialogue and new partnerships among key government actors and stakeholders on the priorities for the forcibly displaced or stateless persons that should be addressed by the SDGs.
- Improve the overall visibility of forcibly displaced/stateless persons.
- Lead to institutional and donor support for more comprehensive assessments.
- Strengthen the complementarity between SDG working groups and task forces dealing with forced displacement.

The intended users of the tool are:

- National and local authorities (including inter-ministerial, cross-sectoral, multi-level, multidepartmental working groups, committees, councils, etc.).
- Specialized national institutions and bodies with mandated responsibilities to work with forcibly displaced and stateless persons (national refugee commissions, human rights councils, etc.).
- UNCT, or UN agencies in their individual capacities.

In addition, other relevant stakeholders can include:

- Organizations led or co-led by forcibly displaced persons and/or stateless persons.
- Development donors, partners and regional organizations.
- National and international civil society organizations.
- Academia, research institutes, technical experts and consultants, especially for external analysis or more rigorous assessment.

The SDG appraisal tool is recommended to be managed and overseen by a relevant government ministry or department in close coordination with UNDP and UNHCR country teams, or other relevant national stakeholders, recognizing the role of the two agencies in the initial stages of the tool's application. Participation of affected persons can also be actively encouraged throughout the different stages of the appraisal process.

The analysis of the thematic templates for pillars I-VII (Annex 1) is designed mainly to be carried out by government experts or external consultants together with the SDG focal points and other relevant team members in UNDP and UNHCR country offices through a multi-stakeholder consultative approach. Depending on the context, the assessment or part of it could also be carried out by national/international research institutions, UNDP Accelerator Labs or other relevant stakeholders. Pillars VIII and IX are designed mainly for internal UNCT assessments, and provided with a separate application process (Annex 1 pillars VIII and IX).

The SDG appraisals can be undertaken as a stand-alone exercise with cycles expected to be repeated periodically, at regular intervals of two to three years to allow sufficient time to incorporate and implement the identified follow-up actions and enable monitoring of progress over time. The periodicity and which pillars will be assessed should be determined on the basis of the particular gaps, priorities, context, needs and thematic aspects being reviewed. If the outcomes of the assessment are expected to induce immediate changes, successive exercises should be more regular, and ideally integrated into existing planning and monitoring systems.

The assessment cycles can also be linked to the time-frame of the national roadmaps for the preparation of the VNRs or the Voluntary Local Reviews (VLR) at a subnational level in different countries. The findings can also inform the deliberations of the consultative phases of the UNSDCF/Common Country Analysis (CCA) or the preliminary stages for the preparation of National Development Plans (NDPs), sectoral strategies and local development plans/agendas.

Methodology, key steps and scoring

The SDG appraisal exercise consists of three main phases: i) desk research and review of existing information and data; ii) information generation through consultative inputs, either through a multi-stakeholder workshop or series of interviews/smaller expert meetings, facilitated (guided) by the thematic questionnaires in the pillars; and iii) analysis of the generated results, validation and reporting, with specific focus on actionable recommendations for different stakeholders:

The tool's core component is the nine thematic pillars with structured questions designed to collect information through a participatory and multi-stakeholder consultative engagement. The questions are divided into two groups of core and complementary questions with an attached differentiated "coloured" and "yes and no" scoring, qualitative criteria as well as means of verification, depending on their direct or indirect relevance to advance the inclusion of displaced and stateless persons in national systems and SDG frameworks. The differentiated approach in the scoring process reflects the fact that some questions are considered more relevant than others, and therefore, provided with more detailed scoring criteria.

Since the SDG appraisals aim to produce a country-specific analysis, many of the questions in the different thematic pillars can be tailored to the national context, legislation and policy implications of the country, using the same method for the scoring criteria and for the definition of the means of verification. Although the application approach behind the tool is sufficiently flexible to allow for priority-based selection of the pillars to be reviewed, adaptation and changes in the composition, substance and number of questions and a case-by-case decision on the most realistic method of engagement (solely desk-based assessment, independent research, external review, etc., or combined with a smaller group expert consultations), the recommended process for conducting the SDG appraisals should follow the illustrated three-phase approach.

The application of the SDG appraisal tool can be initiated by any interested stakeholder in a country. While it is expected that UNDP and UNHCR country offices will initially play a prominent role in the identification of the priority areas, implementing the appraisal methodology, facilitating the consultative inputs, analysing the results and their translation into follow-up actions, the initial experiences gained in the implementation of the tool should gradually assist in developing the capacities in each country to carry out the subsequent rounds of the assessment relying mostly on national expertise, resources and processes.

The SDG appraisal tool can be integrated into any of the existing national monitoring and evaluation systems and steered by designated national institutions, local authorities, interested CSOs and academia. A core group of experts and partners can make the initial identification of priority areas.

The information gathering for each of the thematic pillars should ideally be organized through a consultative workshop (or separate theme sessions/meetings or individual expert consultations) that will generate most of the responses in the questionnaires, agree on the scoring and formulate follow-up actions including a timeline.

The findings from the first two stages, the document reviews and analysis of existing data and information, alongside the key observations from the consultations with experts and stakeholders, should be triangulated with an analysis of the inputs (contributions) and responses from the multi-stakeholder workshop, and summarized in a final results report. The scoring scale and the results of the questions should be validated at the end of the multi-stakeholder workshop (sessions/individual consultations), then summarized by the lead organization(s)/facilitator(s) in a narrative templated report (Annex 2) with key recommendations and follow-up actions and sent out to all consulted participants for final verification. Information on the results of the assessment and the final summary report with the identified follow-up actions and the timeline should be and shared with all relevant stakeholders to ensure transparency and accountability for the decisions on the next steps.

The SDG appraisal tool is most suited to protracted and long-lasting displacement situations but it can also be applied in any forced displacement and statelessness context to measure the degree of inclusion/exclusion of displaced and stateless persons from national systems, development planning processes and reviews of progress towards the achievement of the SDGs. It can be applied at national, local or specific geographical areas in a country (the tool pilot in Colombia was implemented in the municipality of Bello in Antioquia Department). The tool is not designed to measure a particular institutional/organizational performance (no ranking intended), or sector-specific progress related to the achievement of certain SDG service delivery targets, but it should be used to assess the level of inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in national SDG processes, engagement instruments and participatory mechanisms.

While the broad-contextual or non-key questions yield “yes/no” answers, the most critical qualitative questions to assess the level of inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless in national systems and SDG frameworks are marked with a three-colour scale to inform scoring:

Red = missing or limited; requires targeted follow-up actions;

Orange = partial; some processes and milestones achieved or underway, but targeted follow-up actions might be deemed necessary to enable (accelerate) progress;

Green = on track; progress is achieved, only minor follow-up actions, if any, are needed.

The overall score for each pillar is visualized as a percentage of 100, which is the maximum possible score, based on the total number of questions being assessed for the yes/no portion and for the three-coloured scale, providing separate assessment results for each pillar (see examples below from North Macedonia and Türkiye). If the SDG appraisal tool is used holistically (all I-VII pillars), the separate results from the thematic pillars are aggregated into a single final score for the yes/no portion and for the three-coloured scale. The final score of the SDG appraisal is an average of the values of the seven pillars. Since pillars VIII and IX are subject to individual application, the assessment results of these theme areas cannot be integrated into the final score with the other pillars.

In case of adjusting the number of questions in a given pillar by either adding a specific question and/or excluding those that are not applicable to the country context, the scoring for the pillar and subsequently the total scoring will not be affected. For instance, pillar III originally includes 4 core questions and 12 non-key questions; in case it is decided to add an additional core question and exclude one non-key question, the value of the pillar shall be considered as 5 core and 11 non-key questions.

However, the scoring is optional, and therefore it might be excluded from the application of the SDG appraisal tool (e.g. the pilot testing in Colombia did not include the scoring scale).

Two examples of the differentiated scoring scale: results from Pillar I on SDG Institutional Mechanisms and Stakeholder Engagement (North Macedonia) and Pillar III on Data and Monitoring (Türkiye).

North Macedonia (Pillar 1; 10 questions assessed)

Türkiye (Pillar 3; 16 questions assessed)

Are there plans to digitalize the SDG appraisal tool?

After the initial stage of the testing and piloting, the SDG appraisal tool will be gradually translated into a digitalized (web-based) version, which will allow instant scoring and provide different types of visualization to showcase the results from the assessment.

Conducting the SDG appraisals: a three-phase process

The following outline of the three-phase process and the corresponding steps for conducting the SDG appraisals is only indicative and should be regarded as an “ideal scenario” for implementing the tool. It can be adjusted to a lighter and less time-consuming modality, as per country and regional relevance. Other ways the SDG appraisals can be applied include independent research, external analysis, peer review or by a core group of experts who would lead the process of information gathering, data collection, analysis, scoring, reporting and disseminating results to relevant national stakeholders. However, these approaches may fall short of a broad-based validation and identification of joint follow-up activities to address the most pressing gaps. Therefore, each country should weigh the pros and cons of the different assessment approaches and decide which one is best suited in the national context considering the available national expertise, resources, capacities and potential synergies with other relevant processes.

As noted, the illustrated three-phase process should be used for pillars I-VII. For more information on how to conduct the SDG appraisals for pillars VIII and IX, see Annex 1.

Phase 1: Desk research and review of existing information and data

UNDP, UNHCR, other UN agencies or mandate-relevant organizations should lead the process of initiating and preparing to conduct the assessment, and should designate relevant staff members (or a multidisciplinary expert team) responsible for operationalizing the different phases of the SDG appraisal tool. The initial stages could also include mapping the potential priorities and thematic pillars that the assessment would focus on.

Once the staff members/multidisciplinary expert team from the UNHCR, UNDP, other UN agencies or mandate-relevant organizations have been identified, the following steps should be undertaken to launch the appraisal process:

1. Map out key government institutions, local authorities, UN agencies, development partners, civil society representatives and academia to be engaged or lead some elements of the assessment.

2. Identify potential key national institution(s), working group(s) or government experts to co-lead the process from the inception.
3. Share a brief 2-3-page concept note (e.g. the 4-page global summary can serve as a basis, amended with country-specific information) and the tool with the key government co-lead entity/entities and explain why it is important to conduct the SDG appraisal, the expected outcomes, and how the results of the assessment can enhance the inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in national development planning, monitoring and reporting frameworks and enable progress across SDGs.
4. Jointly define the priorities that need attention, agree on the thematic pillars (or questions) to be assessed and the corresponding activities, discuss the roles and responsibilities of each institution/organization, and decide whether it is more appropriate to conduct the assessment at a national, subnational or specific geographical area.
5. If applicable, prepare an estimated draft plan for the financial and human resources required to conduct the assessment and the funding sources for each of the planned phases, including the possibility of engaging an external organization or consultant (depending on the choice of the assessment method, the SDG appraisals may require very limited or no resources at all).
6. Establish a joint core team to lead the assessment and finalize the list of national and local authorities and other stakeholders that will be part of the consultations.
7. Collect and review existing information and documents, including medium-term national/subnational development plans, relevant sector specific strategies and policies, SDG and thematic reports, national surveys, statistical datasets, studies and other reference documents or data collection instruments considered relevant by the core team of experts. The potential sources of information that should be reviewed prior to commencing with the consultative phase of the assessment are provided in the thematic pillar's templates in Annex 1.
8. A brief summary with the main findings from step 7 can be shared with the identified participants (step 6) to be involved in the consultative workshop.

Phase 2: Generate information through a consultative multi-stakeholder workshop

A two-day workshop can generate most of the questionnaire responses to the templates provided in Annex 1, and thus complete the assessment holistically for pillars I-VII. It is suggested that each pillar consultation is a maximum 120-minute session to complete the questions and agree on the scoring scale, considering possible adaptations based on the national context and priorities. It is advised that the pillar sessions of the agenda are facilitated by the relevant experts from the joint core team based on their expertise. The facilitators together with the participants should ensure that the information entered in the questionnaire matrixes is properly verified and sourced. Therefore, it is essential to prepare thoroughly preparation before the workshop, to be able to provide any important references in the additional sections of the questionnaire matrix. For example, if participants indicate that the Local Action Plans do not include targets and indicators for refugees given their high relevance in some of the provincial territories, then a source should be referenced in the comments section along with any other important information (e.g. lack of local capacities for inclusive planning, technical challenges related to the data collection, analysis or the availability of disaggregated data for localized set of indicators, limited resources, structural issues and geographical remoteness). Participants at this stage may already highlight any "raw follow-up actions" against the assessed questions.

At the end of the workshop all responses, supplementary information, the assigned scoring and preliminary results for each of the reviewed pillars should be approved by the participants.

Countries may also decide to organize smaller consultative sessions for priority themes (selective approach) or undertake key informant interviews (e.g. phase two of the pilot in North Macedonia included 12 expert interviews with government representatives, civil society organizations and UN agencies facilitated by an academic researcher, and instead of a consultative workshop a validation workshop was organized by UNDP and UNHCR).

Phase 3: Analysis of the generated results, validation and reporting

Based on the populated questionnaire and the information gathered, an analysis should be conducted to inform specific and action-oriented recommendations and follow-up activities, including joint programming areas, capacity building initiatives and mapping potential sources of financing. The analysis should be undertaken by the core team experts (or the independent researcher/external consultant) and written in the recommended templated report format (Annex 2). The summary report along with the populated questionnaire should be shared and validated by the workshop participants, giving them the opportunity to provide additional comments and feedback. The final report with the assigned scores should be endorsed by the co-leading national institution(s) or government working groups.

The summary report with the information on the assessment results and the follow-up actions with a timeline should be published and disseminated to as many relevant stakeholders as necessary. The results from the analytical work can also be discussed, included or inform the preparations of the Voluntary National/Local Reviews, national SDG reports, roadmaps and support the consultations around the development of national and subnational plans and sectoral strategies.

Follow-up and subsequent exercises

UNDP, UNHCR, other UN agencies or mandate-relevant organizations in cooperation with the co-leading national institution(s)/working groups should share and provide regular updates on implementing the recommendations and the impact of the follow-up actions for the inclusion of the forcibly displaced and/or stateless persons in national systems and development processes.

The core expert team can also point out potential adjustments and consultations with relevant governmental institutions or other stakeholders to make them. Depending on progress, the core expert team should decide when to repeat the exercise.

The early involvement of relevant stakeholders will be instrumental in securing a broad-based national ownership of the assessment process and of the information generated, which in turn will ensure the uptake of the assessment results, identified gaps and scale-up joint programming and actions. Although the SDG appraisal tool is adaptive to allow selectivity of the application methods, the proposed inclusive and participatory approach for conducting the assessment will ensure that the follow-up actions/recommendations are “owned” by decision makers. They will be easier to implement and likely to be more sustainable as they have been obtained through a more rigorous, consultative and transparent process. At the same time, the engagement of the government, local authorities, the UNCT and other relevant stakeholders will foster shared responsibility and consensus in formulating follow-up actions. The involvement of different entities and organizations will also leverage expertise, resources and plans, align priorities and promote new partnerships to advance the inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in national systems and development processes in line with the GCR objectives and the SDGs.

Lessons learned from designing and developing the tool

From the October to December 2020, nine joint UNDP-UNHCR country office consultations were held with staff in Chad, Colombia, Ethiopia, North Macedonia, Pakistan, Rwanda, Serbia, Türkiye and Zambia. The consultations were guided by a structured set of questions looking at the broad context of the SDG implementation vis-à-vis the inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons, accompanied by additional questions looking at the applicability needs and challenges, field practices with similar approaches and potential uses of the tool. The discussions reflected key considerations from the operational experiences and shaped the process of designing the tool. The country consultations generated detailed recommendations for improvements of the design process and facilitated the incorporation of local contextual factors in the methodology. The lessons learned from the consultations provided a sound factual basis and were used to strengthen the development of the tool.

Most of the UNDP and UNHCR country offices and authorities, partners or other stakeholders with whom they discussed this initiative, re-confirmed the strong interest and need for a tool tailored to reveal both the gaps and opportunities for the inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in the national SDG planning, monitoring and reporting frameworks. Staff at all country offices of UNHCR and UNDP emphasized the critical importance of involving the government (both national and local) and other UN agencies through a participatory and consultative process to ensure full ownership, commitment, synergies and sustainability of the operational cycles and results. Staff from both offices, highlighted the two main roles that UN agencies in the countries can play in the operationalization process for the tool: i) directly facilitate the application of the tool in close coordination with the government and among UNCT members; and ii) provide technical and capacity support (guidance) to relevant government entities in using the tool.

Each of the consulted country offices confirmed that the availability of disaggregated data by forced displacement and stateless status for priority SDG indicators are among the main challenges in measuring and monitoring progress. Some country offices (Türkiye, Ethiopia, Rwanda) underlined that it will be important for the tool to provide a structured approach to understand the level of alignment between the different strategic frameworks (GCR/CRRF, UNSDCF, NDPs, etc.) and the SDGs focusing on outcome and indicator levels. Other countries (Chad) reported the need to utilize better harmonization between the HDP nexus approaches and the national SDG priority vision of the country.

Most country offices reaffirmed the need for a context-specific, adaptable, light and easy-to-follow methodology allowing for more comprehensive and rapid assessments. Ethiopia and Chad suggested the development of a checklist with guiding questions. Other key features pointed out by the UNDP and UNHCR field experts include:

- regular periodicity
- ability to mobilize resources
- multi-stakeholder engagement
- increased visibility of forcibly displaced and stateless persons
- promotion of partnerships
- identifying gaps as well as opportunities
- informing joint-programming, outreach and advocacy initiatives
- more critical discussions around the HDP nexus approaches
- linkages to other relevant processes, such as the VNRs, the development and consultative phases of the National Development Plans, sectoral strategies, local development initiatives, the UNSDCF/CCA, CGR/CRRF and similar national frameworks.

Lessons learned from piloting and testing the tool

Pilot tests took place in Colombia, North Macedonia and Türkiye. Chad, Sudan and some other countries are also seriously considering trying out the tool. The goal was to test the tool's functionalities and illustrate how it can be applied in diverse situations, using contextualized methods reflecting the particular circumstances, needs and interests in the country. A great range of applicability options, required resources and engagement approaches were observed in the three pilot countries, indicating the flexible, adaptable and practical characteristics of the tool's assessment methodology. The actionable recommendations in the final reports were perceived as concrete, sufficiently specific, meaningful and measurable for further engagement with the government, UNCT and other stakeholders. The pilot experiences yielded insights on the tool's usability, and important lessons on how to initiate and launch it (even without a full government commitment); how to ensure an inclusive, participatory and sufficiently rigorous assessment process, and what to do with the assessment results to foster greater impact and guarantee the sustainability of the process (continuity regarding the identified actions and their implementation).

In Colombia, the testing took place in the municipality of Bello within the UNDP-UNHCR joint Human Security Business Partnerships project due to the high number of populations of concern (e.g. IDPs, victims of armed conflict, returnees, and Venezuelan populations). The pilot, which was facilitated by existing UNDP and UNHCR staff with no added financial costs involved, included the LNOB and localization pillars. The selected questions were adapted to the specific context and target populations in the municipality. The overall objective was to gather consultative inputs and additional contributions from local authorities and stakeholders on the identified community needs and priorities, and verify the findings of the project's household survey, undertaken among the targeted populations. During two rounds of consultations, local authorities, stakeholders, research institutions and UNDP/UNHCR staff discussed the main challenges in the municipal provision of goods and services, and proposed possible new solutions by taking an integrated approach to scale up resources and align activities in the implementation of the SDGs in Bello.

The pilot in North Macedonia was facilitated by an external PhD researcher from the Ss. Cyril and Methodius University in Skopje under the direct guidance of UNHCR and UNDP country teams, and included a small grant to cover the human and material costs related to the research, publication and dissemination activities.

The researcher was responsible for tailoring the prioritized questions to the national legal terminology and policy framework, collecting data and information, conducting expert interviews with government counterparts, civil society organizations and UN agencies in North Macedonia, facilitating a multi-stakeholder validation workshop and preparing a summary with key findings and a final report (accessible in the local languages) to be shared with a range of national institutions and stakeholders. The assessment included more than 60 questions from across eight pillars, divided into two groups of questions for the desk research phase and the expert interviews. The objective of the assessment was to look at the enabling environment, institutional framework, coordination arrangements and explore the challenges and opportunities for the inclusion of refugees, asylum seekers, returnees and stateless persons in the framework of actions under the new National Development Strategy, and improve the outcomes and update the drafting process of the National Strategy for the Integration of Refugees and Foreigners.

The testing in Türkiye was conducted within the existing structures and initiatives of the UNCT, focusing on the data and monitoring and localization pillars. The pilot was led by the UNDP & UNHCR Regional Refugee and Resilience Plan (3RP) Inter-Agency team with the RCO providing the necessary coordination support. The primary objectives of the assessment in Türkiye were to: i) substantiate a more integrated SDG monitoring approach between different data sources, instruments and frameworks relevant for persons under international and temporary protection; ii) outline the potential 3RP Türkiye Country Chapter's contributions to the sustainable development agenda and the LOB commitments in Türkiye at national and subnational levels; and iii) assess the level of inclusion of refugees in municipal development processes, initiatives and institutional mechanisms to address specific needs vis-à-vis the municipal efforts for context-oriented SDG prioritization and alignment. A number of outputs were produced, including a results matrix for the data availability and gaps for priority SDG indicators and a joint action plan for improving local capacities and planning processes, including through technical support for the development of localized sets of data disaggregated by migratory status.

All questions from the selected two pillars were directly assessed by the 3RP Inter-Agency team without any terminological or substance modifications or additional financial or human resources.

A key lesson learned in the three pilots is that the tool can help initiate a focused (multi-stakeholder) dialogue with a wider range of governmental and non-state actors on systemic factors, such as the availability and quality of statistics for forcibly displaced and stateless persons, the policy and institutional implications, the on-the-ground experiences with law and particular government procedures, and the inclusivity flaws of the national development planning process, building on information and initiatives that are already available but not largely (jointly) used by different stakeholders. The assessment exercise and engagement dynamics also helped members of the core team to increase their practical knowledge of how forcibly displaced and stateless populations are supported by partners and how results are being generally shared to advance their inclusion in national development processes and systems.

Pillar I

SDG Institutional Mechanisms and Stakeholder Engagement Rapid Diagnostic Template

Description: Well-coordinated institutional arrangements as well as inclusive and participatory multi-stakeholder processes are crucial for the implementation of the SDGs and ensuring that no one is left behind.

Objectives: The questions will examine how inclusive and participatory the 2030 Agenda institutional and multi-stakeholder mechanisms are in terms of representation of the needs and interests of forcibly displaced and/or stateless persons, alongside other vulnerable and marginalized groups.

Prior steps: A desk-based review should be conducted before starting the consultations on the questions. This can involve studying the existing SDG institutional arrangements, coordination mechanisms, multi-stakeholder processes, mapping the roles and responsibilities of relevant government institutions and stakeholders, thematic and evaluation reports, meeting records, project documents, relevant information from government agencies and non-state actors. The review should look at how participatory and inclusive the institutional arrangements and stakeholder engagement mechanisms are to shape and influence policies and initiatives that are key to enable the inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in the country. Summary of key constraints and challenges faced in terms of the institutional environment and coordination mechanisms to support national review of progress towards the achievement of the SDGs for these populations of concern should be shared in advance with participants (multi-stakeholder consultative workshop and sessions)/stakeholders to be consulted (individual meetings).

Expected outcomes: Identify gaps and explore opportunities for a broad-based engagement and multi-stakeholder dialogue that can strengthen participation and representation of national institutions and bodies responsible for displacement and statelessness, other relevant stakeholders and UN organizations with mandate responsibilities to support forcibly displaced and stateless persons, and thereby, more effectively engage in the SDG institutional arrangements and consultation processes.

Pillar II

National Development Frameworks and Sectoral Coherence

Rapid Diagnostic Template

Description: Balancing the three dimensions of sustainable development, incorporating the SDGs in national development plans and sectoral strategies, and ensuring an integrated planning approach for policy coherence are key steps for the effective implementation of the 2030 Agenda and for reducing inequalities, poverty and marginalization.

Objectives: The questions will examine the level of inclusion of forcibly displaced/stateless persons in national development frameworks and processes.

Prior steps: A desk-based review should be conducted before beginning the consultations on the questions. This would involve studying the existing national development strategic frameworks, stand-alone SDG action plans, relevant sectoral strategies and policies that pertain to forcibly displaced/stateless persons, including (if available) the Mainstreaming, Acceleration and Policy Support (MAPS) mission reports and Rapid Integrated Assessment (RIA) findings. Secondary analysis of recently undertaken legal or policy gap assessments and reports from international organizations and CSOs focusing on the national legal protection framework and the access to rights and services for forcibly displaced/stateless persons could help to identify key bottlenecks that may impede progress on the SDGs. A summary of key policy coherence challenges and legal/institutional barriers preventing inclusion of these populations of concern in the national development planning processes and outputs should be shared in advance with participants (multi-stakeholder consultative workshop and sessions)/stakeholders to be consulted (individual meetings).

Expected outcomes: Identify policy factors that might negatively impact efforts to strengthen inclusion and explore opportunities for mainstreaming key considerations related to the needs of forcibly displaced/stateless persons in national development plans and sector-specific strategies to enable more equitable SDG implementation. The results from this exercise can support and inform the roll-out of existing (or planned) policy initiatives, and reinvigorate discussions around removing legal or administrative barriers to advance protection, accelerate solutions and scale up joint actions to improve SDG progress and increase the visibility of forcibly displaced/stateless persons, alongside the communities most affected by the displacement.

Pillar III

Data and Monitoring

Rapid Diagnostic Template

Description: The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development makes an explicit commitment to “leave no one behind” urging Member States to prioritize actions for the most vulnerable population groups, including refugees, internally displaced persons and migrants. To properly measure progress and understand the multiple deprivations and exclusions these population groups face, sufficiently disaggregated data across relevant indicators and dimensions must be produced, processed and analysed.

Objectives: The questions will examine the availability of disaggregated data for the SDG indicators relevant for forcibly displaced/stateless persons in the national monitoring framework, and assess the potential use of complementary (non-official) data sources.

Prior steps: A desk-based review should be conducted before beginning the consultations on the questions. This would involve studying the national SDG indicator framework of the statistical system, including administrative sources of relevant government ministries and agencies (e.g. records for subpopulations linked to their institutional mandate, such as health, education, income, housing and food), population censuses and household surveys as well as complementary (non-official) data collected by other stakeholders, UN agencies or research institutions. If available, information from national Multidimensional Poverty Index (MPI); Multiple Indicator Cluster Surveys (MICS); Living Standards Measurement Studies (LSMS); Demographic and Health Surveys (DHS) as well as targeted and outcome data collected by UNCT should be examined. A summary of the availability of disaggregated data and the information gaps for the SDG indicators relevant for forcibly displaced and stateless persons should be shared in advance with participants (multi-stakeholder consultative workshop and sessions)/stakeholders to be consulted (individual meetings).

Expected outcomes: i) increase visibility and incentivize the development of new/additional statistics on forcibly displaced/stateless persons (or include questions in the censuses and existing data instruments that compile statistics to ensure that forcibly displaced and stateless persons are identified) by building momentum and awareness among government officials and other stakeholders/ UNCT partners on key considerations related to disaggregating priority SDG indicators by “forcibly displaced/stateless” status; ii) assessing possibilities for alignment and integration across datasets provided by different sources; and iii) initiating discussions on the need to facilitate new data sharing protocols or dissemination mechanisms among government officials and other stakeholders/UNCT.

Pillar IV

National SDG Reporting and VNRs

Rapid Diagnostic Template

Description: Regular and inclusive country-level reviews of progress, challenges, trends, successes and lessons learned based on inputs of quality data and multi-stakeholder participation are important factors for implementing the 2030 Agenda.

Objectives: The questions will examine the degree of inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in national SDG reporting and the Voluntary National Reviews (VNRs).

Prior steps: A desk-based review should be conducted before commencing the consultations on the questions. This would involve studying the national SDG reports, VNR(s) and, if applicable, non-official/CSOs SDG spotlight reports. A summary of whether, and to what extent, forcibly displaced and stateless persons and considerations around their inclusion are being recognized in national SDG reporting frameworks and the global follow-up and review process should be shared in advance with participants (multi-stakeholder consultative workshop and sessions)/stakeholders to be consulted (individual meetings).

Expected outcomes: i) increase visibility and scale up measures to mainstream displaced and stateless persons in SDG reporting initiatives; ii) open up avenues for effective and systematic contributions in the SDG reporting mechanisms by government agencies, UNCT members and non-state actors with protection and solution mandate responsibilities; and iii) explore opportunities to institutionalize approaches for inclusive reporting.

Pillar V

Leave No One Behind

Rapid Diagnostic Template

Description: The leave no one behind (LNOB) commitment is central for achieving the 2030 Agenda and is applicable to forcibly displaced/stateless persons given the extent of vulnerability and marginalization these populations frequently face. This means prioritizing progress for the poorest and most disadvantaged groups across SDGs and policies. The overarching objective to reach the furthest behind first, however, also implies taking targeted actions for all vulnerable and marginalized populations, even those not explicitly mentioned in the 2030 Agenda. These include people deprived of opportunities to participate in and benefit from development progress as a consequence of being stateless.

Objectives: The questions will examine whether forcibly displaced and stateless persons are being included in national LNOB assessments identifying which population groups should be the focus of response interventions.

Prior steps: A desk-based review should be conducted before beginning consultations on the questions. This would involve studying relevant laws, policies and programmes to understand whether the specific vulnerabilities and needs of forcibly displaced and stateless persons are duly recognized as a state obligation to protect and uphold rights. A secondary analysis of previous LNOB assessments, thematic studies and reports, and the availability of relevant targeted and disaggregated indicators to compare situations between and within groups (including disaggregation by multiple characteristics simultaneously to reflect intersectionality) and with the rest of the population should be conducted. A summary of key protection gaps and whether explicit inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons is prioritized and fast-tracked in tailored actions to enable and accelerate progress towards achieving relevant goals and targets should be shared in advance with participants (multi-stakeholder consultative workshop and sessions)/stakeholders to be consulted (individual meetings).

Expected outcomes: i) identify barriers to the explicit recognition of forcibly displaced and stateless persons as a specific vulnerable group and – if this is not considered feasible– identify measures for their implicit recognition tailored to the country’s context; ii) draw the attention of multiple stakeholders to the need for multisectoral (e.g. environment and health) and targeted (e.g. promoting employability of refugees) measures; iii) provide basis for more in-depth LNOB national assessment; and iv) support shared understanding on potential joint funding pledges of prioritized programmatic interventions in areas likely to have the biggest impact on the well-being of these marginalized groups.

Pillar VI

SDG Localization

Rapid Diagnostic Template

Description: The SDGs must be achieved at global, national and subnational levels. Localizing the 2030 Agenda means taking diverse subnational contexts into consideration to implement the SDGs through a local development and monitoring framework that is aligned with the goals. Particularly important is the role of local and regional authorities in delivering basic services, responding to specific territorial needs and circumstances, reflecting on local priorities and measuring and monitoring local SDG progress, especially for the most marginalized and vulnerable populations in their territories.

Objectives: The questions will look first at the local enabling environment in terms of alignment of the local/regional development (action) plans with the SDGs and national development strategies, and then how inclusive those plans are in responding to the specific needs and vulnerabilities of the forcibly displaced or stateless population groups in the particular provincial territories.

Prior steps: A desk-based review should be conducted before commencing the consultations on the questions. This would involve studying local/regional development plans, the availability and quality of local indicators, monitoring frameworks and project reports in territories with large numbers of forcibly displaced persons. A summary of key challenges, gaps and area-based opportunities for local inclusion using the SDG framework should be shared in advance with participants (multi-stakeholder consultative workshop and sessions)/ stakeholders to be consulted (individual meetings).

Expected outcomes: i) support shared understanding among stakeholders on the local gaps, needs and priorities to enable progress across SDGs in territories most affected by forced displacement (statelessness); ii) inform potential joint initiatives and projects based on the identified needs and priorities to the specific subregion; iii) identify accelerators and drivers that have multiplier effects across SDGs and communities; iv) support subnationally tailored resource mobilization and awareness activities for local and regional authorities.

Pillar VII

Country-Level Alignment of the Global Compact on Refugees and the SDGs

Rapid Diagnostic Template

Description: The Global Compact on Refugees (GCR) seeks to operationalize fairer international response to large-scale refugee movements and protracted refugee situations through effective arrangements for sharing burdens and responsibilities in line with the international refugee protection regime, with four main objectives: i) easing pressures on host countries; ii) enhancing self-reliance of refugees; iii) expanding access to third-country solutions; and iv) supporting conditions in countries of origin to enable refugees to return. The Comprehensive Refugee Response Framework (CRRF) is an integrative part and a key driver for the implementation of the Global Compact on Refugees. Various national arrangements and regional approaches are also being applied to operationalize the GCR. The pledges made at the Global Refugee Forum (GRF) by governments and other stakeholders give a good indication of the context-specific priorities for the application of the GCR, and serve as a good entry point for identifying synergies with progress towards the SDGs and how this is reflected in laws, plans and policies relevant to forcibly displaced/stateless persons' access to rights and services.

Objectives: The questions will examine the alignment and linkages between the GCR/national refugee response frameworks and/or national statelessness strategies and the implementation of the SDGs.

Prior steps: A desk-based review should be conducted before commencing the consultations on the questions. This would involve studying national arrangements and commitments, including reference to regional approaches or support platforms where relevant, which promote a comprehensive response to the specific displacement situation in the country. These include plans, monitoring frameworks, coordination and partnerships mechanisms and specific countries' pledges and commitments made at the Global Refugee Forum and the High-Level Segment on Statelessness. If available, a review of completed outcome-level assessments, interlinkages and mapping exercises between the national refugee response model and the SDGs should be conducted. A summary of key observations in using national refugee or statelessness frameworks alignment and complementarity with the SDGs should be shared in advance with participants (multi-stakeholder consultative workshop and sessions)/stakeholders to be consulted (individual meetings).

Expected outcomes: i) identify opportunities for leveraging coherence of objectives and outcomes between the national refugee/IDP response frameworks or statelessness strategies and the SDGs; ii) improve efficiency and coordination among relevant national institutions, UNCT, CSOs and the private sector in advancing implementation on the national refugee/IDP response frameworks or statelessness strategies in line with SDG progress; iii) inform more in-depth assessments or review of the level of compatibility between the national refugee/IDP response frameworks or statelessness strategies and the SDGs at country level; and iv) discuss joint funding pledges to advance improved access to services, infrastructure, technology and economic opportunities for refugee and host communities.

Pillar VIII

Synergies and Inclusion Opportunities with United Nations Sustainable Development Cooperation Framework (UNSDCF)

Rapid Diagnostic Template

For UNCT Internal Use

Description: The UNSDCF (Cooperation Framework) represents the collective support of the UN Country Team (UNCT) offered to the host Government in achieving the SDGs. The Cooperation Framework anchors national development priorities and aligns to the national SDG monitoring framework and reporting cycles with a particular focus on the most vulnerable and marginalized groups.

Objectives: The questions will examine whether appropriate measures for the inclusion of forcibly displaced and/or stateless persons are incorporated in the UNSDCF and the Common Country Analysis (CCA), and whether these measures complement the implementation of the national refugee response frameworks and statelessness strategies.

Assessment approach: Focal points from UNHCR or UNDP country offices, in close consultation with the Resident Coordinator Office (RCO), through a desk-based comparative analysis, map and identify synergies and potential inconsistencies in approaches and frameworks that operationalize the UNSDCF and the national GCR planning and monitoring models (including GRF pledges) vis-à-vis the national SDG architecture considering the key elements for inclusion of and solutions for forcibly displaced/stateless persons. Synthesized findings of the identified complementarities and gaps in aligning operational consistence between the different frameworks, including recommendations for actions in successive Cooperation Frameworks preparation cycles, should be discussed with UNCT members in a consultative session alongside the questionnaire matrix. Final report with observed synergies, gaps and opportunities, incorporating feedback from the UNCT consultative session, should be shared with relevant government counterparts, development partners and other stakeholders.

Expected outcomes: i) identify interlinkages, gaps and synergies between the UNSDCF/CCA and the GCR frameworks (including national refugee, IDPs and stateless plans) to enable national progress towards the relevant SDG targets for forcibly displaced and stateless persons in an integrated manner; ii) improve UNCT programme efficiency and define joint tangible actions for these populations of concern, linking framework activities and intersectoral objectives; iii) inform evaluation exercises, annual reviews and ensure more comprehensive inclusion of forcibly displaced and stateless persons in successive Cooperation Frameworks.

Pillar IX

SDG Country-Level UNDP-UNHCR Cooperation

Rapid Diagnostic Template

For UNDP-UNHCR Internal Use

Description: The overarching objective of the SDGs to “leave no one behind” is an important factor for bridging the humanitarian-development-peace (HDP) nexus approach in situations of forced displacement.

Objectives: The questions will examine how the application of a systematic SDG approach (based on the outcomes from the previous eight pillars) could inform programming and resource mobilization priorities of UNDP-UNHCR collaboration at a country level, and how this can be applied to both planning, regular reviews, measurement of results and knowledge management and documentation of good practices from field collaboration.

Assessment approach: A joint consultative session between relevant staff from UNDP and UNHCR country offices guided by a facilitator from the RCO, UNCT members or the UNDP/UNHCR SDG focal points discuss and agree on the responses of the appraisal matrix. The populated appraisal matrix with the assigned score and an action-oriented summary report identifying feasible and realistic measures for moving forward greater HDP coherence and harmonization with the SDG-GCR/CRRF outcomes is prepared by the facilitator and shared for verification with relevant UNDP and UNHCR staff. The final report could be further disseminated within UNCT, development partners and other stakeholders.

Expected outcomes: i) identify mutually reinforcing programme areas that can trigger positive multiplier effects across relevant SDG targets and GCR-related outcomes for persons of concern to UNHCR who are vulnerable, marginalized or at risk of being left further behind, consistent with the UNDP mandate; ii) agree on a list of prioritized actions that complement national development priorities and the targets of the United Nations Sustainable Development Cooperation Framework (UNSDCF), and can be put forward for joint planning, programming or resource mobilization; iii) elaborate on the need for a full and comprehensive joint contextual analysis on the legal gaps, policy implications and the social-economic situation of forcibly displaced/stateless persons towards achieving the SDGs and the objectives of the GCR/CRRF (national refugee response frameworks); iv) inform joint advocacy (outreach) initiatives for the inclusion of the forcibly displaced/stateless persons in national development planning, service delivery, monitoring and reporting mechanisms, or track progress towards pledges made at the 2019 GRF.

Annex 2: Indicative Outline of the Summary Report

I Front section

- Name of the country; subnational region/province; specific geographical area(s);
- Date of endorsement and responsible national entity/entities;
- Key populations of concern: facts and figures;
- Details and composition of the core expert/assessment team;
- List of consulted stakeholders.

II Executive summary

- Brief summary of the report, including pillars assessed, key findings and messages, challenges and recommendations.

III Main body of the report

- Introduction and context (results from the reviews of existing information and data, SDG country priorities, means of implementation, social-economic situation of the key populations of concern, legal gaps and practical obstacles in attaining access to services and rights, availability of data and reference to studies and surveys, etc.);
- Methodological approach (engagement/consultation process, methodology used, pillars assessed and justification, assessment questions and overall score, verification and endorsement process, etc.);

- Limitations and structural issues (externalities and domestic/political implications);
- Key findings by pillars (highlight the main gaps and challenges in connection to the assessed questions, identified needs, bottlenecks and potential solutions, subnational difficulties and contextual incentives; highlight the main opportunities, such as policy reviews, legal reforms, new cooperation possibilities and joint initiatives).

IV Follow-up actions and timelines

- (Joint) Actions required against the assessed pillars (if feasible, please consider activities, deliverables, resources needed for each action, timelines, responsible entity/entities, capacity and monitoring considerations, etc.).

Consider graphics and tables to highlight the required actions.

IV Conclusion and recommendations

- Summary of the assessment results, next steps and recommendations.

V Annexes

Annex 3: Country Examples

#1 CASE STUDY

Country: Colombia

Timeframe: June 2021 – December 2021

Responsible entity: The United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

Resources: None (cost sharing with the Human Security Business Partnerships project).

Targeted populations: IDPs, victims of armed conflict, returnees, ex-combatants, and the Venezuelan populations in the municipality of Bello.

List of consulted stakeholders: Staff from the municipality of Bello, traditional/village leaders, Secretary of Coexistence – Directorate of Human Rights, Secretary of Health, Secretary of Environmental, Secretary of Housing, Public Enterprises of Medellín, House of Rights of the Ombudsman, Pro-immigrants Corporation, Secretary for the Elderly, Confenalco, project experts from UNHCR and UNDP, community-based organizations and representatives from the University of Antioquia.

Methodological approach, process and activities: The testing exercise of the SDG appraisal tool in Colombia consisted of three main phases:

I. Conceptual overview of the Human Security project objectives and outcomes and review of the results obtained in the framework of the human security survey to increase synergies and understand the identified gaps and needs in terms of access to economic opportunities, education and health services and satisfaction in local decision-making processes.

II. Two rounds of focused consultations with authorities and relevant stakeholders in Bello municipality were organized to gather inputs and contributions from key actors, in addition to the perceptions and views of the project beneficiaries, which were not captured through the human security tool/survey, and which helped identify programmes and actions to advance solutions for the targeted persons of concern.

III. Development of joint individual theme-based “solution cards” capturing both the perceptions of the populations of concern and local decision makers and partners.

IV. Development of a human security agenda including clear advocacy pathways with key public and private sector actors, with the objective to engage in transitional solutions towards sustainable solutions that advances local integration in the second biggest urban settlement in Colombia.

Scope and objectives: Building on the work undertaken within the objectives of the human security project, and in particular, supplementing the results of the human security survey with consultative contributions to: i) engage with local authorities and relevant stakeholders, including the private sector in Bello municipality to increase the direct communication and dialogue on the identified community needs and priorities, and verify the project survey results targeting the populations of concern; and ii) support and facilitate the operationalization of a multi-stakeholder approach towards sustainable solutions in Bello municipality in line with priority SDGs specific to the local context that can be subsequently replicated in other project areas.

Specific outputs: Adapted questionnaires; individual theme-based “solution cards” summarizing and interpreting the survey results and conclusions reached during the two rounds of consultations.

Results and impact: Integrating the SDG appraisal tool in the outcomes of the joint UNDP-UNHCR Human Security project helped to bring together different stakeholders towards joint sustainable solutions linked to the achievement of particular SDG targets in Bello municipality. In practice, this fostered a shared understanding and leveraging activities in response to the feedback received from the targeted populations, thereby increasing community participation in SDG planning and decision-making mechanisms.

#2 CASE STUDY

Country: North Macedonia

Timeframe: October 2021 – January 2022

Responsible entity: The United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

Resources: US$4,500 (including human and material costs, such as translations and graphic design of the summary and final reports), co-shared between UNDP and UNHCR country offices.

Targeted populations: Asylum seekers, persons granted international protection, returnees and stateless persons.

List of consulted stakeholders: Experts from the Ministry of Interior (Mol), Ministry of Labour and Social Policy (MLSP), Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MFA), the Prime Minister's Office, staff members and project consultants from UNHCR, UNDP, IOM, the Office of the UN Resident Coordinator and representatives from relevant civil society organizations.

Methodological approach, process and activities: The assessment exercise was undertaken by an external researcher and consisted of three main phases, covering 63 questions across 8 pillars. The questions were chosen by UNHCR and UNDP working teams as being the most appropriate for the national context in North Macedonia.

I. Desk review and in-depth legal analysis of existing information pertaining to the status of the targeted populations was undertaken, including the law on citizenship and its successive amendments, the law on foreigners, the law on civil registries and its amendments, the law on unregistered persons, the law on free legal aid, the law on census and the law on asylum and temporary protection as well as the national transpositions of international treaties and European law relating to asylum. The review also included the relevant national policy framework, including sectoral plans and development strategies, the related outputs and outcomes of the UNSDCF, and the institutional structures for the SDG coordination to measure representation and accountability.

II. Expert interviews. Additional information was generated through structured interviews with key experts from the government, UN agencies and civil society organizations to complement (and verify) the critical conclusions reached at the desk research phase. Furthermore, the expert interviews helped to discuss the implementation deficits of specific laws and policies, the efficacy of administrative municipal procedures and the capacity limitations from a practical (multisectoral) perspective.

III. Results analysis, validation workshop and reporting. A multi-stakeholder workshop was organized to validate and share information and tentative results, and steer discussion around the most critical challenges, outline possible solutions and support the preparation of the final report.

Scope and objectives: The overall objective of the pilot was to conduct a comprehensive assessment covering multiple aspects of the policy, legal and institutional environment and understand how the SDG priorities identified by the National Council for Sustainable Development and reported on in the first VNR report of North Macedonia can be used to advance the inclusion of the targeted populations in national systems and development processes.

Specific outputs: Preliminary report with key findings from the desk research; populated questionnaires and interview protocols; executive summary with key findings and recommendations; and a final report.

Results and impact: The assessment enabled UNHCR and UNDP to identify specific areas to improve, where state institutions and stakeholders can do better, such as at the local level, and how municipalities can facilitate more comprehensive policymaking towards the inclusion of vulnerable communities, building on the results obtained from the application of the SDG tool. The assessment further helped UNHCR and UNDP country offices as well as the participating institutions to formulate a number of concrete and evidence-based recommendations to improve the representation and extending the agenda coverage of the National Council for Sustainable Development, promote systematic monitoring and reporting (e.g. through new methodologies, digital tools and/or partnerships) of national human rights institutions and accountability mechanisms on the rights of refugees, asylum seekers and stateless persons towards the achievement of relevant SDG targets, build on the GRF pledges to identify sustainable solutions for all persons without legal status, improve communication and systematize the responsibilities of key institutions to enable non-state actors and stakeholders to better understand which institution is responsible for “what” and “how”, and accelerate the adoption of the Strategy for the Integration of Refugees and Foreigners, reflecting on key findings and new challenges identified through the assessment. Indeed, it was reaffirmed during the stakeholder consultations that the implementation of the Strategy for the Integration of Refugees and Foreigners can be achieved with a stronger political will, and joint commitments by all institutions. This will require the closer alignment of the Strategy with the national development priorities in North Macedonia and the EU acquis, alongside more joint initiatives between different actors that could bring about the desired impact. The results and findings of the SDG Tool will also inform the Common Country Analysis and other key documents, contributing to strategies and strategic directions.

Country: Türkiye

Timeframe: May-October 2021

Responsible entity: The UN Resident Coordinator's Office in Türkiye (RCO); the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP); and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

Resources: None.

Targeted populations: Approximately 4 million persons under international or temporary protection in Türkiye.

List of consulted stakeholders: Syria Task Force (STF; inter-sector technical coordination body of the 3RP); relevant pillars of the UNSDCF: RG3 on Migration and International Protection; selected members of RG5 on Governance; UNSDCF Monitoring for Strategic Results Working Group; Hacettepe University; United Cities and Local Governments (UCLG); Union of Municipalities of Türkiye (UMT); Resilience in Local Governance Project (SKL-RESLOG).

Methodological approach, process and activities: The application of the tool focused on two thematic pillars - Data and Monitoring (Pillar 3) and SDG Localization (Pillar 6) – and used a mixed-methods assessment approach consisting of three different phases:

I. Desk review of relevant documents and data sources (instruments). For the pillar on Data and Monitoring, the desk phase activities included review of the main data sources, such as statistics produced by the Turkish Statistical Institute (TURKSTAT), including thematic administrative data collection instruments (e.g. the Ministry of National Education, MoNE; the Ministry of Health, MoH); large-scale (e.g. Türkiye Demographic and Health Survey, TDHS) and specialized surveys (e.g. the Syrian Barometer); and data collected across relevant frameworks (e.g. UNSDCF, 3RP). For the SDG Localization pillar, the review included mapping refugee inclusion in municipal strategic plans; subnational/local participatory and engagement mechanisms; institutional municipal structures to improve access to services and rights; municipal involvement in global processes; and whether goals and targets that best respond to the specific local circumstances and refugee/migrant needs have been prioritized.

II. Consultative workshop to discuss and verify preliminary findings, and gather feedback from relevant stakeholders and partners on the identified gaps. Workshop participants included the United Nations Country Team (UNCT), civil society representatives, academia, development partners, etc., and captured multiple stakeholder perspectives on the identified issues and priority areas. The workshop also generated complementary inputs, filled information gaps and enhanced the credibility and usability of the assessment results and the proposed follow-up actions.

III. Synthesis of findings: final summary report preparation. To guarantee the continuity and sustainability of the assessment results, a final summary report, alongside the validated SDG appraisal tool outputs (see outputs section), was first presented at the STF meeting, and then disseminated to relevant government counterparts and other interested stakeholders.

Scope and objectives: i) Substantiate a more integrated SDG monitoring approach between different data sources, instruments and frameworks relevant for persons under international and temporary protection; ii) outline the potential 3RP Türkiye Country Chapter's contributions to the sustainable development agenda and the LNOB commitments in Türkiye at national and subnational levels; and iii) assess the level of inclusion of refugees in municipal development processes, initiatives and institutional mechanisms to address specific needs vis-à-vis the municipal efforts for context-oriented SDG prioritization and alignment.

Specific outputs: Summary report on the Pillar on Data and Monitoring; indicator matrix of relevant data instruments and frameworks; populated questionnaire for the Pillar on Data and Monitoring, including provisional scoring to facilitate subsequent exercises, means of verification for the generated information, additional information for specific questions and the agreed follow-up actions for the identified issues; result matrix of the SDG Localization mapping and municipal (district) questionnaire-based profiling; populated questionnaire for the Pillar on SDG Localization, including provisional scoring to facilitate subsequent exercises, means of verification for the generated information, additional information for specific questions and the agreed follow-up actions for the identified issues; action plan for improving local capacities, planning processes, including opportunities, when relevant, to support localized sets of data disaggregated by migratory status, and ultimately ensure refugee inclusion in subnational development processes; action plan to improve inclusion of refugees and migrants in the national statistics system, through appropriate disaggregation by migration status and/or institutionalization of specific surveys focused on the needs of refugees and migrants.

Results and impact: Key findings of the assessment were translated into actionable short-term recommendations with shared follow-up responsibilities among the 3RP Inter-Agency team. The proposed conclusions and recommendations linked a number of systemic issues with integrated efforts to address them, including through a continued engagement with TURKSTAT and relevant custodian agencies to increase the availability of refugee statistics to measure progress towards the SDGs, further explore the opportunities to influence the development of the Official Statistics Program (2022-2025) and improve the generation of disaggregated SDG indicators for refugees and migrants, and foster a multi-stakeholder cooperation to align municipal strategic plans with the relevant SDG targets, and facilitate refugee inclusion through the implementation of the action plan responding to the assessment results.
