We amplified our efforts in strengthening local economic development and socio-economic empowerment in selected provinces to build self-reliance among refugees and their host communities. We worked in close cooperation and cooperation with local business communities, chambers, business associations and entrepreneurs in various sectors of the economy.

UNDP helped bringing together Turkish and Syrian business owners, entrepreneurs, innovators to stimulate local economic development, social cohesion and to create new and decent livelihood opportunities for refugees and their host communities in Turkey.

We delivered hundreds of displaced Syrians and Turkish nationals with business development, entrepreneurship and innovation trainings to form joint ventures and to facilitate new business openings, especially in regions with high refugee population.
